

TWO HUNDRED YEARS

Stories of the Nation's Capital

by Jeanne Fogle

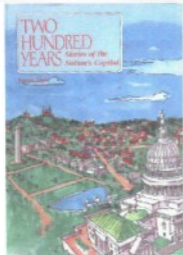

- ISBN 0-918339-16-2
- Cloth
- 184 Pages
- 6x9
- Illustrated
- $14.95

"... a breezy, anecdotal tour, past and present, of this absurd and enchanting city."

—The Washington Times

"... a smooth involving study which highlights female as well as male involvement in Washington's growth."

—Bookwatch

Travel in time with the premier raconteur of Washington facts and trivia, author and tour guide, Jeanne Fogle, as she conducts the ultimate tour of Washington, DC.

Fogle takes an enchanting look at a group of people who shared their money, talent and aspirations to build a city worthy of being the nation's capital; people like Anne Royal I, Harry Wardman, J. Edgar Hoover, Katharine Graham and "Duke" Ellington.

With the 200th anniversary of the founding of the nation's capital at hand, TWO HUNDRED YEARS: Stories of the Nation's Capital is the perfect way to re-live the past that ultimately shapes today's present.